I'm not robot!

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan on Monday once again threatened to stand in the way of Finland and Sweden joining NATO a day before he met with Russian President Vladimir Putin in Iran. "I would like to remind once again that if these countries do not take the necessary steps to fulfill our conditions, we will freeze the (accession) process," Erdogan said in a televised address, per the Associated Press. "Our stance on this issue is very clear. The rest is up to them." Turkey has accused the Nordic countries of being too friendly with Kurdish militant groups it considers to be terrorists, while also taking issue with embargoes on arms exports. Along these lines, Turkey initially said it would block Finland and Sweden from joining the alliance. NATO enlargement requires unanimous agreement from all current members. But Turkey dropped its objections last month after coming to an agreement with Finland and Sweden. Turkey, Finland and Sweden have signed a memorandum that addresses Turkey's concerns, including around arms exports and the fight against terrorism." NATO chief Jens Stoltenberg said at the time. "After both Scandinavian countries submitted applications and Turkey said it was dropping its objections, NATO formally invited Finland and Sweden to join the alliance in late June. The next step in the process is for the legislatures of all 30 members to ratify Finland and Sweden's accession. Finland and Sweden a historically neutral or militarily non-aligned countries moved to join NATO as a direct response to Russia's unprovoked invasion of Ukraine, marking one of the most significant consequences of Putin acting on his imperialistic ambitions. Indeed, Russia's war has unified the West in historic ways. "But autocratic leaders like Erdogan who hold sway in NATO a friend e have exposed cracks in that unity. They had to depend on themselves, eAAA Townsend told VOA. eAAIt took the wolf being at the door for those nations to come in. eAAA The two countries applied to join in May, but the process began months earlier during the initial phase of RussiaeAAAs invasion of Ukraine, with Biden reaching out to the leaders to discuss the possibility of joining NATO, a senior U.S. administration official told reporters Tuesday. Since then, the U.S. has been eAApainstakingly working to try and help close the gaps between the Turks, the Finns and the Swedes, eAAA the official said. eAAAAll the while trying, certainly in public, to have a lower-key approach to this so that it didn't become about the U.S. or about particular demands on the U.S., eAAA he said, referring to Ankara eAAAs long-standing request to purchase U.S. F-16 fighter jets. Biden phone call The official denied that Ankara made the warplane request a precondition to withdraw its objections. However, he noted that Biden conveyed Tuesday during a phone call to Erdogan his desire to eAAaget this other issue resolved, and then you and I can sit down and really, really talk about significant strategic issues. eAAA The day after Ankara lifted its veto, the administration announced its support for the potential sale of the fighter jets.
